

The future of marketing is digital!

Social and digital marketing is set to be the future of marketing. Businesses need to adopt digital marketing methods to appeal to the increased number of consumers looking to the Internet for content. 89% of the total UK population are internet users, spending half their time on social media. Businesses are increasing looking for help to promote products and services online.

Move into a new social media or digital marketing role within your business, join a digital marketing agency or set up your own business to manage social media and digital marketing for others.

Concise Training has a range of supported distance learning courses to enable your social and digital marketing learning depending on your starting point and the role you wish to move into.

Stand out from the crowd with a social or digital marketing qualification.
